

LIFE AFTER 2020!

Life after one of the worst years,
Is going to be filled with laughter and tears.
You probably won't recognize my face,
Or maybe you'll recall how I look with a mask at a slower pace.

Washing hands is not an option,
Social distancing is a strict instruction.
Cream sellers are going to be back in business,
Because hand dryness will be repetitious.

Our hands will be green or blue,
And when people say - Caught red-handed!, I will have no clue,
Because everyone's hands would have gloves that are blue!!

All our plastic waste,
Is going to make oceans disgraced,
Fish will be displaced,
And the usage of plastic would have to be debased.

We'll be using word and google docs, saving paper,
So trees will thrive,
But we shouldn't stop participating in our school recycling drive,
We all want the amount of greenery to increase, not much later.

Our world won't be how we left it,
But the world will develop bit by bit.
We should save our environment and love the earth,
There's nothing more valuable than its worth.
